Reese's Peanut Butter Cup. I got that wrong.

There's nothing more to say.

Yes, we're scared and everyone is worried for a crazy person like me. That's why I use Hidden Acumen, a powerful and clinically backed energy boosting formula. The Shinto research provided a core answer to my question: The brain of a psychopath and the brain of a hero function differently. We've learned that chronic and/or severe stress is one of the causes that lead to an imbalance in the chemicals in the brain that control your mood. See, now that's--

She's coming in hot, guys.

So.

Goddammit.

She's on my team!

Yeah, I get this. What are we gonna do with you, Brit?

We're just gonna shoot her.

Alright. So we're going down. I am so taking this with me.

Yes, we will. Just let me get out of here first.

Okay, now, is this the, you need to investigate?

Yep.

It's an underworld. Maybe that'll be his favorite machine in the future. Maybe there will be some weird dance of fate that'll happen. I mean, the whole thing with Karzahka being murdered just like a dickhead.

My God, I can't find any of this shit.

I mean, I can definitely understand that. It's super stressful. And especially when you have to deal with a narcissist, it's double the stress because they're doing everything that they can to get you to stay. They're doing everything that they can to try and convince you that you are to blame. You are the toxic one. You are the problem. You are the person that needs to change. You're, you're, you're this, you're that, you're, it's all about you. No, honey, no. It is not about you. And I had to sit there and go, "Holy shit. That's what he does. That's exactly what he did to me. That's why he told me. How did you see this coming?" Well, I've been dealing with this for a very long time and I have learned to see signs of abusive people coming. And if I know the, um, what's the word I'm looking for? The warning signs. And that warning sign is usually arrogance or aggression. And that's what I found. And I could point out in the video the exact points where he's like, "I'm way too strong. I can easily just snap your neck and that'll be the end of it." And then when that didn't work, and when they were like, "You're being too emotional. You're being really aggressive." It was like, "Huh, that sounds an awful lot like it's my fault for your psychotic episode." Yeah, it's not my fault that you're overreacting. And he literally starts laughing and he's like, "No, no, no, you're misunderstanding me."

It's not the funniest part is that the first time that I brought that up, um, one of the big sociopath people, they said, "Oh, actually, your cognitive dissonance is acting up." I was like, "What?"

Wait, what? Where did that come from?

Yeah.

So I think what he means by that is that it's not logical for you to claim that someone wants to come here and steal your children. And I'm like, "What?"

No, it's not. I know, I know, I know. Let me just show this. This is crazy. Who makes up stuff like this? Like what? What? "The world is the worst. I did a little white supremacy." It says, "Dr. Akyana Carter, also a popular commentator on Wold Star." (laughs) "Is a major factor in and out of the NFL."

Yo, y'all see the lack of tears. See that shit? That was real frustration, huh?

Yes.

I love that.

Yeah, I'm really, and she's cute as hell, but she--

I hate it.

I could tell she wouldn't, and it wasn't about winning, it was about getting-- I was uncomfortable being a female in a professional game for the first time.

Like, if I came from a group chat and there's like the hood nigga gang coming on the show, and they like, they have a show and it's called, you know, Black Man Confronts Reality, and it's like all these Black people calling in, sharing some similar stories, talking about some, and they say, "Don't touch this."

Oh, and a good one for me would be, "How is there, what is it?" Man, you know you can't use that kind of language. (laughing)

Yeah, you can. I'm gonna think of a few things for you.

Nah, I can't. (laughing)

But I think that the one story of the week is the Facebook story, if you wanna talk about it.

Sure, sure.

And I am sick and tired of the memes, it's, it's, it's, ugh.

Oh, I was crying, they said, like, I saw a meme, it was something along the lines of, "We're tired of Karens," and they were like, "I just came up with my own name, Karen. "I don't need these fake, these so fake names." It was so funny.

I feel like they would have the people that can laugh at themselves.

Well, they don't laugh at themselves, they usually don't last in this business. So, you're either going to have a lot of hours in your day, you're gonna have to work very, very hard, and you're going to have to be well-liked in order to stay in that space, but these folks are living in DC. I mean, that's where they all live.

Right.

They've been there for years, they've been doing it for years. They're not dependent upon this farm income, for example, as part of their livelihoods. And so, the answer is you're wrong. That is not what this is about.

They're not being compensated through that kind of money.

No, no, I know. That's not how most people at all.

No, it's like, it's just not what's happening here. It's about, it's to follow the rules, it's so, you know, without the community showing up at these meetings, it's, they can talk the talk, but when it comes to walk the walk, they're not willing to do it. So, don't take your own selfish, personal, low-life problems out on any of these people, on the endorser, on the school board, on the school administrators, on the teachers. You know, the way they went out and talked about the teachers, absolutely appalling, especially as I have seen first-hand, when children's first night and the police were called out.

At the end of the day, our kids have been damaged, and I am demanding that my school board apologize to my kids for their actions. It's very disturbing to see how these teachers have responded, and I can't sit back and say, "Oh, it's okay, "because they didn't like the guy." Well, I don't care. They still have to take care of my child. I don't care if they hate me. That's their problem. The interest is on my child. So here we are, our children is being affected by the politics and the mayor is saying that the strike is illegal, but yet in the next breath, they're ignoring the state board of education's approval to not use the invalid and unreliable compass assessment system. So I just want to remind everybody that last week, Jim Schmidt was in front of this council and he stated his desire for this big project with no assessment. And the city attorney at the time said, "This is not a budget amendment item. "This is a communication."

And I'm just, whoa, whoa, whoa. What? I mean, that's the first time I've heard that. There's two things I know is if there is a source of funds that is used to say here's where the money's coming from and all you guys go, okay, okay, I got it, I got it, and then it shows up at, I believe it was $125,000. So, it shows there's still a piece of it. But there was no discussion to my knowledge, and I don't know that, maybe it did, about using the $600,000 to offset the loss of the revenue. And so, there's a disconnect there with what we're hearing now and what the initial proposal was, and I don't believe it's legally possible. You can't just arbitrarily just say, well, this board, this council, we're just going to do this, which we did. We just took money from transportation to fund something else, but we didn't change the actual budget. We just keep borrowing money to cover the cost. The fundamental problem that you have, that you as a manager have, and our responsibility is that we have been living off our reserves. Our fund balance at the end of '19 is about $2.8 million, which is fairly healthy. It's been about the same for about five years. The problem with that is that we have gotten by for the last few years by raiding the capital equipment fund, which is the savings account for the schools. We can't do that indefinitely. And I have had a long conversation with the mayor. So my point is that we are creating, in my opinion, we're going to be creating a structural deficit of significant proportions. And at the same time, I also think that the cost of this change should be picked up by those who can afford to pay. I will be consistent, I will be, I will be transparent. I'm all for fairness. It's hard to take it from the people who can't afford it. And those are the real, those are the children who are going to lose. The kids in my community and North Laurel, kids in Savage, kids in Jessup. So this is a bad policy and it's going to have long lasting impacts. I don't know what the superintendent's justification was for bringing this forward because it doesn't make sense.

So you, it sounds to me like you're agreeing with what my brother and sister said, that this is really just a ploy to get what they want, which is funding. I think you should approve the budgets.

Okay. Okay. Other questions? Mr. Ryan, anything else you want to add to that? Okay. I have a note here to give an overview of what a triage care center does. Did you want to talk to that, Jennifer?

Sure, certainly. Thank you, Mayor, for giving me the opportunity to talk about this. So that's correct. It's a very small project. There are a lot of people that are concerned about their heat going out. So I think that's something that we have in our area. We're trying to work closely with the Southern Maryland Electrical Co-op and a few other companies to look at, is there a way that we can help provide assistance to these folks? For instance, I know, let's say the Agricultural Commission or individuals of that type, the Animal Control and all that, that in the summer, of course, they always struggle with their budget and with their animal facility. And the other issue we've had with them, we haven't had it in the past because it was more or less some services provided on a contract basis. They provided those in-house to the selectmen or the city council now. Now it's more of a contracted out thing, but they're coming up with a higher price and then I was wondering, I know there was talks about possible reconciliation of something, but I don't know where that went to.

It's something I'll have to get you an update on.

That'd be great, thank you. So you brought up the recycling and I see on this that the first round of the Green Tip recycling program is ending in December. What are the thoughts with next year? I mean, is it expanding that program, going to see what the results are and then going to the board or?

Yeah, I can say it's highly unlikely. And actually, I'm almost certain we'll start the new contract April 1st. 'Cause then the new fiscal year will be in place, July 1st, and so it would really be a new start on that process. The beauty of that is that we will also have another quarterly report due to the advisory board. So if the council feels as if they're not getting the result that they're looking for, they have a clear opportunity to change it with their vote for that next year's funding.

It's not the board's recommendation. So again, it's going to the council and there's a recommendation that it be the first week of October. And so the question is, is that okay with you? And we do understand that you were asking the question of the actual result of the number of yards. And what we did is we, what we've done is that the portion of recycling can be up to 30%. So if it's less than 30%, this is calculated and it's posted on the website. And when the 2017 numbers come in and the 2018 is calculated, we should be able to calculate all the revenue generated from it and apply it to the recycling fund. So it's important that that happens.

[Woman] Did you also verify that the purchase of a cart for recycling in the borough code specifies that if the rate for the dumpster rental service or recycling costs increases by more than 3%, the commercial entity is responsible for the additional charges?

That's correct.

Okay, so this $3 a month we get, if they ever have to have an increase of more than 3%, that comes from somewhere else in the budget, not from the general fund?

That would be correct. It would be probably the contractor.

It would be the contractor.

We do get a slight reimbursement, but in the past it hasn't come to us yet. We've only received a few of those bills, and we've already had some issues with that and discussed it. So we're in the process of trying to solve those things as well. And we're doing that in the new agreement.

[Man] Mr. Cook? (mumbling) [Man] I think it'd be a good idea to have some sort of local control. The body that will be able to make the decision about what happens to the tree on top

I apologize, I was referring to my previous message. In it, I mentioned that a proposed initiative for reducing plastic waste is to provide free or subsidized reusable bags to residents, which can be used instead of single-use plastic bags. This would help reduce the amount of plastic waste produced and ultimately help protect the environment. Additionally, some cities have implemented bag bans or fees to encourage the use of reusable bags. These measures can be effective in reducing plastic waste and promoting more sustainable practices.

Probably not unless you both work at your hobbies for extended periods of time, or your hobby just happens to be painting roadways or something else equally not cleaning up the local park. Kinda hard to prove someone was working on their hobby when they are a little seven year old....but I digress.

I was really hesitant to go because I thought this was just something I wanted to do, and there wasn't really any business reason for me to attend. I wanted to see my doctor and I think it was a good idea to go because it made me feel better and stopped my anxiety.

So I found myself online looking for my perfect bed, and I just couldn't decide so I bought both.

While my husband installed the new flooring in our living room, I began thinking about how our dining room was looking a little bare and it was all my fault. The previous decor didn't match our style and the room seemed so plain. It took a few weeks of begging, but my husband finally gave in, and we are now the proud owners of this beautiful dining room suite and this incredible glass table.

I love this table. It's a pedestal table, so it's very stable. I was always afraid of having a table with a leaf because I didn't like the idea of a seam down the middle of the table, but we got this when it was on sale for $399 with the chairs. We're planning on making our next dining room table. I'd like something round, but not too big since our dining room is on the smaller side. The bar stools are for our island. #newkitchen #moving #hardwood #darkhardwood #whitekitchen #kitchenremodel #home #decor #renovation #interiordesign #country #rustic #farmhouse #farmhousestyle #woodfloors #countrystyle #grandvillecabinetry #ikea #granitecountertops #quartzite #granitecountertops #cooking #remodel #homeowners #cabinetpainting #homeinspo #style #homegoods #modernfarmhouse #farmhousekitchen #kitchen #kitcheninspo #hgtv #coupleswhobuildtogether #lifestyleblogger #GangstaNerdLife #geek #designer #organizer #doitall

Our kit is designed to look simple and clean! You get one big pot for flowers, vegetables, or any other plant, then add more in a linear fashion as needed. This design allows for easy addition and replacement of plants in your garden whenever you like.

So, I've seen videos where people are saying that the first three games you make as full play throughs, and then once you get a hang of it, it's really easy to crank out like 10 videos in an afternoon. So I'm kind of excited to play the game in that way, because I've heard that it does have potential. Unfortunately, I have to wait until December to do that, so in the meantime I guess I'll be doing raids and playing my less preferred roles or trying out new stuff in order to stay on my toes and not get too comfortable with any one set of abilities.

However, I don't see myself spending $30 on a beta that I'll be playing casually at most, unless it turns out to be very worthwhile. I think the Open Beta was a good move as it gave those who already had pre-ordered or are considering buying the game a chance to try it before the masses come in. It also let the developers find out what was wrong with the game and what needs to be fixed/changed. I can only hope that this was for one and the other things get done as well. If that happens I'll gladly purchase at launch, but until I see the fixes myself I can't give my wholehearted support. Maybe everyone could get their refund so you can repurchase? Hell, it doesn't look too good at all right now for anyone trying to get a refund.

The point being they didn't actually give people what they paid for. Also no matter what we do now our reputation is tarnished on this server. An admin of all people should know to keep their word. Remember...Karma is a real bltch! People remember that. But this has come up before. I remember back when I first tried playing this game and was barking up this very same tree, I was told that the toons have to change forms at the same rate (which is mostly true), but that WoTC errata'd a spell with some wording like "You cannot have more than 2 Protects in your deck" with "Because every job can now have Red XIII's Limit Break: "Raging Flames of the Dragon's Blaze!" so now you can always have 3 on your boards. This kinda fix is a bit too complicated, but if somebody wants to implement it, I'll fully support them. There's plenty of good rationale for it (that other users have detailed), but at least I don't have to keep pingg down nodes to bring them up to 2.

Here's a list of some ideas for "base powers" from different comics and things that we could use: (Notice how a few of these might be really powerful in isolation, even without the Synergy bonus) - Credit to <http://www.l4d.com> (The L4D webcomic). Always remember that when making this weapon class, you are not required to copy anything from Half-Life 2: Deathmatch, or any other source. The idea here is to borrow and expand upon the concept of "reconnaissance" from other ideas. You may want to make a rule to avoid redundancy and simplicity.

Looking at it now, I'd say my biggest obstacle in designing the metapuzzle is not really how it comes together in story, but how it makes the story progress.

Trying to imagine what pieces I would really need, I thought to give it a sort

Nigeria is the home of the third highest prevalence of child marriage in the world, accounting for 10% of child brides globally, according to the United Nations Population Fund (UNFPA). Over the last 10 years, around 18 million girls have been married in Nigeria, often before the age of 15, and 38% of Nigerian girls marry before the age of 18, according to data from the Demographic and Health Survey (DHS). Despite these challenges, community members were opposed to the idea of government intervention to prevent child marriage, arguing that girls' maturity and readiness to marry should be assessed on an individual basis and that parents and traditional leaders should not be stripped of their authority over their children.

Justice Kekere-Ekun said the complaint is in two parts; Akinjo Olusegun vs Attorney General of the Federation & Ors (Suit No. FHC/ABJ/CS/71/09) and PDP vs INEC. He said all the processes filed by the respondents in the appeals shall also be struck out.

Reacting to the suit, the convener of the Buhari Campaign Organisation, Osita Okechukwu, a retired Director General of Voice of Nigeria, VON, said that Jonathan should be cautious as he battles to win a second term, as losing could result in investigation of all his corrupt activities.

Herdsmen Attacks: I was slapped, humiliated, disallowed access to my husband - Fasoranti's widow laments

"It was a very scary experience. They (militants) gained entry into my home and shot in my direction, though the bullets did not get me I was hit by an object on my shoulder," she said, as tears rolled down her cheeks.

A manhunt has been launched by the Ogun State Police Command for a housewife, Atinuke Oluwafemi, who allegedly stabbed her husband, Taiwo Oluwafemi, to death in their rented apartment at Agbotikuyo, a community in Sagamu area of Ogun State. PUNCH Metro gathered that the suspect, who had been nursing her grudge against the husband for yet to be ascertained reason, allegedly committed the crime on September 30, 2020. For over 24 hours after killing her husband, nobody knew about it, until the neighbour reported at Sango Police Division the sudden death of Mr Oluwafemi, 60, at his home. He was reported to have slumped and died on Monday. "It was the noise from the deceased's room that attracted neighbours to his room and when they tried to open the door, they discovered it was locked from inside. They also discovered that the car was parked in the same position till the following day. When they entered the room the following day, they found his lifeless body," said a source. A resident who pleaded anonymity said that he did not hear any cry for help, adding that he was woken up by his daughter who had alerted him about the incident. "My daughter woke me up and said she heard the woman and her husband arguing the previous night. She said she did not hear any other thing and assumed that they were just quarreling as usual," he said. He further explained that when he heard the woman screaming for help he ran out to her house to know what was happening, but she was dead already. Other residents joined him to break into the woman's house, only to find her naked and in pool of blood. It was then they discovered her husband was not around. In his confessional statement, the suspect said that he went to Alhaji Abdulkadir Alhaji's room, where he demanded for his share of the rice sale. "When the victim refused to give me the money, I threatened to shoot him, I asked him why he refused to pay me my N2,500 since he collects N7,000 for daily collection. READ ALSO: President Buhari set to visit South Africa for AU summit on June 12th 2015 He pleaded with me and he gave me the money but I was not satisfied with the amount and we started arguing. I asked her what she was doing with the cutlass, and she explained that it was what she was using to open coconuts," Agwu said.

According to reports, the Police, who were alerted, apprehended the man and recovered a double barrel locally made gun with two live cartridges and one spent cartridge from his residence.

The suspect was subsequently arrested and detained at the State Criminal Investigation and Intelligence Department for further investigation and prosecution.
